Advisor's Other Interests Which Could be Deemed Materially in Conflict with Purchaser's impact the value to you of your selected annuity contract).

Your Advisor has a financial interest in the transaction recommended, which could affect his or her best judgment as a fiduciary when recommending the transaction to you. The following are other potential or actual material conflicts of interest Advisor may have in facilitating your planned annuity purchase:

Receipt of Other Incentives: Insurance companies, wholesalers, or distributors may offer advisors financial incentives, including, but not limited to: gifts, meals, or entertainment of reasonable value; reimbursement for training, marketing, educational efforts, advertising, or travel expenses to insurance company-sponsored conferences or events; or participation in profit sharing plans or bonus programs. Your Advisor may benefit, directly or indirectly, from one or more of such additional incentives due to Your purchase of the selected annuity contract

- Rollover Recommendations: Advisors have a conflict of interest in recommending you roll over an employer-sponsored retirement plan or IRA to another IRA, because the advisor will earn a commission if you roll over your assets, but would not earn a commission if you did not.
- Product Recommendations: Recommending an annuity contract may be a conflict of interest, as the commissions paid on annuities may sometimes be higher than those paid in connection with general securities or other non-insurance products.

In addition to the potentially Material Conflicts of Interest listed above, your Advisor also informs you of the following additional potential or actual conflicts of interest in connection with this transaction (Advisor should
